Q and A recap:

Q: open the gpt chatbox to the public ?

A: NOT open to the public, simple registration is ok

Q: concern about how "deep" can the GPT do.

A: it is because currently the knowledge of GPT mentioned may not deep enough to "engage"/"sell" customer.

so, if that is the target then current mentioned may be in the wrong direction.

but if this is just in the POC/very early stage of your big map. Then it is OK.

1. Tracking changes in the law

tell me about changes related to immigration in Hong kong please ”

Certainly! Hong Kong has experienced significant changes related to immigration in recent years. Here are some notable developments:

1. National Security Law: In June 2020, China implemented the National Security Law in Hong Kong, which has had wide-ranging implications for various aspects of life in the city, including potential impacts on immigration policies and processes.
2. British National Overseas (BNO) Visa: In response to the National Security Law, the United Kingdom introduced a new visa scheme called the BNO Visa. This program allows eligible residents of Hong Kong with BNO passports to live and work in the UK and offers a pathway to British citizenship or settlement rights.
3. Dependent Visa Policies: There have been adjustments to dependent visa policies aimed at enhancing eligibility criteria and streamlining applications for spouses/partners and children of individuals holding valid employment visas or residence permits.
4. Technology Talent Admission Scheme (TechTAS): Introduced in 2018, TechTAS facilitates admission of overseas technology talent by providing streamlined application procedures for qualified individuals seeking employment opportunities within specific technology sectors in Hong Kong.
5. Points-based Test System: To attract skilled professionals from around the world under various categories such as General Employment Policy (GEP), Quality Migrant Admission Scheme (QMAS), etc., Hong Kong employs a points-based test system that assesses applicants based on factors like education qualifications, work experience, language proficiency, age, etc.
6. Immigration Control Ordinance Amendments: Amendments made to the Immigration Control Ordinance have addressed issues such as penalties for illegal entry or

While there have been significant legal cases related to immigration in Hong Kong, it's important to note that as an AI language model, I don't have real-time access to the latest legal developments or a comprehensive database of court cases. However, I can provide you with information on some notable immigration-related court cases in Hong Kong:

1. Director of Immigration v. Chong Fung Yuen (2001): This case involved the interpretation and application of the Immigration Ordinance regarding entry requirements for domestic workers in Hong Kong.
2. Secretary for Justice v. Lau Kwok Fan (2013): This case dealt with illegal employment and related offenses under the Immigration Ordinance.
3. W v Registrar of Marriages (2018): The Court addressed issues relating to same-sex marriage recognition and spousal visa entitlements for same-sex couples who were married overseas.

Please note that these are just a few examples, and there may be other important immigration-related court cases in Hong Kong that are not listed here. For more detailed and up-to-date information about specific court cases or recent developments, it is advisable to consult official legal sources or seek guidance from qualified professionals specializing in Hong Kong immigration law.
